Tatiana Grant (nee Romanova) was born and raised in Moscow, in a family of scientists.

In 1964-67 she studied in the Moscow Institute of Fine and Applied Arts "Stroganovskoe" and graduated from the Moscow Krupskaya Pedagogical Institute (1968-73).

She has been a member of Moscow Union of Artists and Graphic Artists since 1984.

In 1966-68, while being a student, she worked as artist-scenographer at the Moscow Mayakovsky Academical Theatre, designing and painting stage decorations.

Through 68-75 she created artistic staging and costume designs for several independent drama and musical theatres in Moscow.

In 70-71 she works at Central TV (Drama Studios) as an assistant designer.

During Tatiana's student years and after graduating she was active in cinema field as well as scenography and advertising art, she also worked as an illustrator in various publishing houses of Moscow, taught art and language in schools.

Since 1974 she has been learning restoration skills, co-working with the masters at the Grabar Restoration Center at saving and bringing to life ancient icons XIII-XVIII century. Tatiana Grant performed restoration on tempera icons and frescoes for the Russian Orthodox Church and private collectors.

She also got deeply involved in the art of miniature painting. From restoring, she came to paint new icons, developing her experience, learning from monastery masters and old church books. Since 1974 Tatiana Grant has been commissioned to create new works by collectors and churches throughout Russia, France, England, South America, and the United States.

Since 1989 Tatiana Grant lives and works in San Francisco and Santa Cruz California.

Among her latest monumental works the most important are altar and nartex frescoes and icons in the Prophet Elias Orthodox Church (223 Church St., Santa Cruz, CA), frescoes, tromp'l oels and faux paintings in "Chateau Bleu" historical building (1901 Jackson St, San Francisco), The Holy Cross Church (900 Alameda, Belmont, CA)) has over thirty icons by Tatiana Grant. Her miniatures are represented by "A la Vieille Russie" (781 Fifth Ave, New York, NY). She has been a member of CIVA (Christians in the Visual Arts) since 1996.

Tatiana Grant's works are in numerous states and private collections in the United States and all over the world.
